Newfoundland Involvement

The Newfoundland political scene has made fascinating watching over the last few months, but of particular interest to Old Boys and friends of St. Andrew's is the fact that throughout that whole period, the province's immediate political future lay almost entirely in the hands of four St. Andrew's Old Boys: Frank Moores, John Crosbie, Ed. Roberts and Andrew Crosbie.

Frank Moores relinquished his position as national party President and his seat in the federal Parliament to lead the Progressive Conservatives first to a doubtful and then to a decisive win over Newfoundland's long entrenched Liberals. John Crosbie left the Smallwood cabinet in 1968 to become the only man ever to defy the little Premier and survive politically and financially. He later joined Conservative ranks as the focus of discontent with the ruling regime, and now holds the cabinet posts of Minister of Finance and Economic Development. Brother Andrew was a major strategist and the provincial campaign manager for the Liberals in the disastrous October election, and remains a "guiding spirit" behind the party. The party's leader in the last election was, of course, Ed. Roberts, past provincial Health Minister and a lawyer.

It is worth the trouble to look back through old issues of the "Review" to see just what these men were into when they attended St. Andrew's. It was absorbing to see just where the interests of each man lay, and each was considerably involved in the activities that the school had to offer. Some of the more striking facts: Moores was C.O. of the Cadet Corps for two years in a row and Head Prefect in his final year, and Andrew Crosbie played first football from the time he was in grade ten.

One wonders what bearing the education these men received at S.A.C. had on their present prominence. They share an educational background which encourages ambition and nurtures qualities of leadership. But more than this the School teaches that with power and position comes an obligation to render service. Power must not be sought for the sake of power, but for the opportunity it lends a superior individual to benefit others.

Careers

One of the activities of the Association that has received a lot of attention this year is assistance to the Guidance Dept. concerning career advice to S.A.C. boys. On January 13th, Careers Night was held at the School, when students in Grades 11, 12 and 13 were able to attend any two of twelve different discussion groups on various professions and businesses, led or arranged by Old Boys and Parents. Topics discussed included engineering, medicine, law, politics, accounting, education, architecture, advertising and marketing, food services and business management.

50 YEARS AGO

FIRST HOCKEY TEAM — 1922

WINNERS OF PREP SCHOOL GROUP, JUNIOR O.H.A.

The present and even the preceding generation of Andreans probably are entirely unaware that St. Andrew's hockey teams were real contenders for Junior O.H.A. honours in past years. This 1922 team, for example, not only won their group but went on to the third round of O.H.A. play-offs defeating Queen's University and Collingwood on the way! They lost only after a tough overtime series to a powerful St. Mary's team in Toronto. Believe it or not, both teams were coached by the late Mike Redden, who sat up high in the stands during the series rather than behind the bench of either team. Several members of the S.A.C. team including Jess Carrick and Jack Cameron went on to become outstanding athletes of their time in hockey and other sports. James Lewellyn Kinsey and Francis Charles Winslow Callighen have been on our "lost" list for years. The editor would be grateful for any information about either of them.

Following this a committee under the chairmanship of Keith C. Pilley developed a plan for the students to spend a day in the Toronto area, for an "on the spot" look at the working environment and conditions in the business or profession of their choice. A survey of the Grade 12 and 13 boys indicated a much wider range of interests than the original twelve, with the result that this phase of the activity had to be considerably expanded. The visits were finally teed up to take place on April 18 when some 90 boys went to 22 different places of business. Quite a job in logistics to coordinate travel arrangements! Thanks to some valuable help from members of the Ladies Guild, everyone got to their destination and on time.

The degree of cooperation from those who undertook to sponsor groups or individuals was truly fantastic. Several even took the trouble to write and say how impressed they were with the calibre of students who visited them. Enthusiasm of the boys ran high, too, and it was obvious that they were grateful for the opportunity provided. There seems to be no doubt that this activity of the Association is worth continuing.

The Careers Committee expresses its warm thanks to the following sponsors - Abitibi Paper Sales Ltd.; Acres Consulting Services Ltd.; Bell Canada; Blackwell, Law, Hilton & Treadgold; Clarkson Gordon & Co.; Conwest Exploration Co.; Eatons of Canada; Eglinton Veterinary Clinic; Federal Dept. of Ag-

What does The Independent (Private) School Offer?

For those of us involved with independent schools it is probably a good idea to ask ourselves that question every now and then. For one thing it causes us to take a good look at what we're doing, and consider ways and means of improving existing practices. Nothing is free from the possibility of being obsolete.

First of all, perhaps, we should acknowledge that the mere existence of an independent school offers at least a choice. It is an alternative to the state-owned or public school. Freedom of choice is an essential ingredient in a free society which we are still fortunate enough to have in Canada. While few will doubt that tremendous improvements have been made in the public system over the years, there exists a wide degree of difference in the quality of individual schools. You may be favoured with a particularly good one in your community, or it may be otherwise. If it's otherwise you are stuck with it unless you're willing to move - or you can investigate an independent school.

But let's get down to specifics. What are the benefits of an independent school like St. Andrew's? We start with the overall philosophy which has proved, and hopefully will continue to prove, of benefit in years ahead and is a tradition based on participation, discipline, getting along with others, leadership training, striving for excellence, with emphasis on the free enterprise system.

Students are under supervision virtually twenty four hours a day, seven days a week. This is not as restrictive as it may seem because they are given a reasonable amount of time to leave school property depending upon their age level. Generous holiday periods also allow for much time during a year for students to be home with their families.

A full program of activity inside and outside classroom keeps students occupied during their waking hours, with some time to pursue their own interests. Supervised study in the evenings teaches them good study habits, and is undertaken as a matter of course since all are doing the same thing at the time.

Small classes averaging no more than 20 permit communication that is direct and more personal. A good deal of individual attention and interest on the part of the teacher is possible and usually found. All teachers are involved in supervisory duties in residences and in extra curricular activities such as sports, dramatics, debating, music, club affairs, etc. which gives them additional opportunities to know and influence the students.

The calibre of the staff is higher than average, because the independent school is free to choose its own people and the demanding nature of their duties requires a rather dedicated type of person.

It must be borne in mind that students entering most independent schools do so intending to proceed to university. With few exceptions no program other than the five year arts and science is offered. With that in mind, it is a proven fact that the degree of success in achieving university entrance by students from independent schools is very high. At St. Andrew's 95% or better of Grade 13 students have been accepted into university in recent years, and for most of them the university and course of their choice.

The athletic program is wide with excellent facilities and organized for all age levels, unlike most public schools where facilities may be good but inadequate for all but a small fraction of the students. St. Andrew's, for example, has representative school teams in football, soccer, cross country, hockey, basketball, swimming, skiing, judo, fencing, cricket, rugby, tennis and track. This gives the majority of boys the opportunity to represent their school in competition against other schools. For the remainder, House Leagues provide participation. This program normally occupies from 3:30 until 5:30 most afternoons, and is in addition to the usual PT periods during classroom time.

Other extra-curricular activities play an important part in the educational process, too. Dramatics, debating, cadets, music both instrumental and choral, and clubs are examples. All of these give the student the opportunity to express himself in terms of his own aptitudes and interests. They are, of course, more likely to be of benefit to the student in residence, but they are there for the day students as well.

Leadership qualities are developed and demonstrated at all stages of school life, culminating in the Grade 13 year when students assume considerable responsibility for supervision of younger students.

Not by any means the least of the advantages is the opportunity to make close and lasting friendships that may and often do prove beneficial in later years either in business or social life. Most of the schools in Canada enroll students from other countries as well, so that some knowledge of customs and culture of these other peoples is gained.

Without denying or diluting the virtues of a happy family life, there may be a stage in the child's upbringing where living and learning with other young people in the controlled atmosphere of a residential school is more beneficial than the contribution parents can make. This is particularly so when the parents are busy people and be away from home a lot or otherwise unable to spend as much time with their children as they would wish.

This has been just a capsule resume of what the independent school has to offer. Any comments from readers will be welcomed.

Old Boys Hockey

Saturday, March 11, saw the annual Old Boys versus the School hockey game at the Aurora arena. To widen participation by Old Boys a different procedure in selecting the team was adopted this year. Five members of teams of the last 5 years were invited to play. From this group Geoff Love '69 assembled an enthusiastic bunch which Grant Edwards handled adroitly from the bench. It was a nip and tuck battle all the way until the last 5 or 6 minutes when the School's conditioning paid off, enabling them to rap in two goals and skate off with a 5-3 victory. Actually the Firsts came up with probably their best game of the season so the Old Boys deserve great credit for keeping the game close despite never having played together.

Scorers for the Old Boys were Bob Roots with 2 goals, Andy Sanderson a goal and assist, Paul Kitchen with 2 assists and Geoff Love an assist. The following played for the Old Boys - Bill Watt '67, Bob Sommerville '67, Peter Rutherford '68, Chris Rous '68, Ted Ruse '69, Geoff Love '69, Andy Rutherford '70, Andy Sanderson '70, Bob Roots '70, Paul Kitchen '70, John Pepper '71, Jim Sara '71, Paul Higgins '71.

It was hoped that an Old Boys basketball game would be held again this year but unfortunately efforts to organize the team did not start early enough.

York Region Chess Champs

St. Andrew's College captured the York Region Secondary School chess championship in February. The tournament, which was held at Newmarket High School, involved 67 secondary school students.

The St. Andrew's team consisted of David Hally, Paul Chan, Robert Rees, Francis Szarka and Richard van der Jagt. The team received a trophy and bronze medals were given individuals.

David Hally was runner up for the individual championship.

Error

ERROR

In the November 1971 issue of the Andean, page 2 under Annual Giving, the years 1970 and 1971 were reversed. This had the effect of showing Annual Giving in 1971 had declined from 1970. Although nobody drew the error to our attention (don't know what that indicates!), we noticed it ourselves and thought it should be corrected for the record.

Athletics

Highlight of the sports scene at S.A.C. in the winter term was basketball. The First team achieved what may be a "first" in the history of the School, in winning the Independent Schools Athletic Association (former LBF) championship for the third straight year. During this three year period only one league game was lost. Four members of the team were on it for all three years. Although these four are now in Upper VI (Grade 13) and thus will be moving on to new surroundings next year, there are promising players on the Second team which won the 1972 ISAA title for their age group. The Thirds came up with a fair season, too, as did an Under 15 team. S.A.C. has been fortunate in having a number of first rate players and qualified coaches among the staff, as evidenced by the fact that the First team has been coached by a different person in each of the last three years. Congratulations are in order to Messrs. Walter Froese, Denis Karis and Glenn Woods for their fine results.

Hockey suffered once again due in some measure to lack of ice time. The Aurora Community Centre is excellent and a far cry from the old tin arena but unfortunately has many demands on it. Aurora is a rapidly growing community and has a flourishing minor hockey organization so there is little possibility of additional time available to St. Andrew's, in fact the reverse is more likely. We do have outdoor natural ice when weather permits but it is not consistent. Most of the other schools in the ISAA have their own arenas. Are there any angels among our readers who would like to donate one, or participate in a group to get one?

The swimmers came up with a creditable showing in the ISAA meet at York University.

Skiing, both alpine and cross country, was very popular this year. The School team competed in several meets in addition to sponsoring an invitation meet in February at Medonte.

For those not involved with representative School teams, House League hockey and basketball was available. Enthusiastic groups in judo and fencing were active throughout the term.

The coveted athletic 'A' was presented to two boys at the athletic awards banquet in March - Robin Wilkie and George Kilpatrick. To achieve this honour a boy must have obtained 70 athletic points during his years in Grade 11, 12 and 13.

Think June 16!

Throughout the past month of snow and ice, the Ladies' Guild of St. Andrew's have been thinking, almost exclusively, of June 16th. On this evening, the Seventh Annual June Ball will be held.

Mrs. R. G. (Mabel) Wall and Mrs. D. H. (Ann) Featherstonhaugh are co-covenantors for this year - and with their committees - have worked hard on plans to transform the Quad and Great Hall into an Aurora Camelot!

The June Ball is a marvellous opportunity for Parents, Old Boys and friends of the School to join in an evening of fun — and at the same time, make a valuable contribution to the St. Andrew's Foundation Scholarship Fund.

Please reserve June 16th — dust off your dress armour — and enjoy an evening of good food, dancing and fun.

We shall miss you if you don't come! Start thinking June 16th now!

For those who want to brush up on their Scottish Dancing, a practice session will be held at the School on Wednesday, June 7th.
